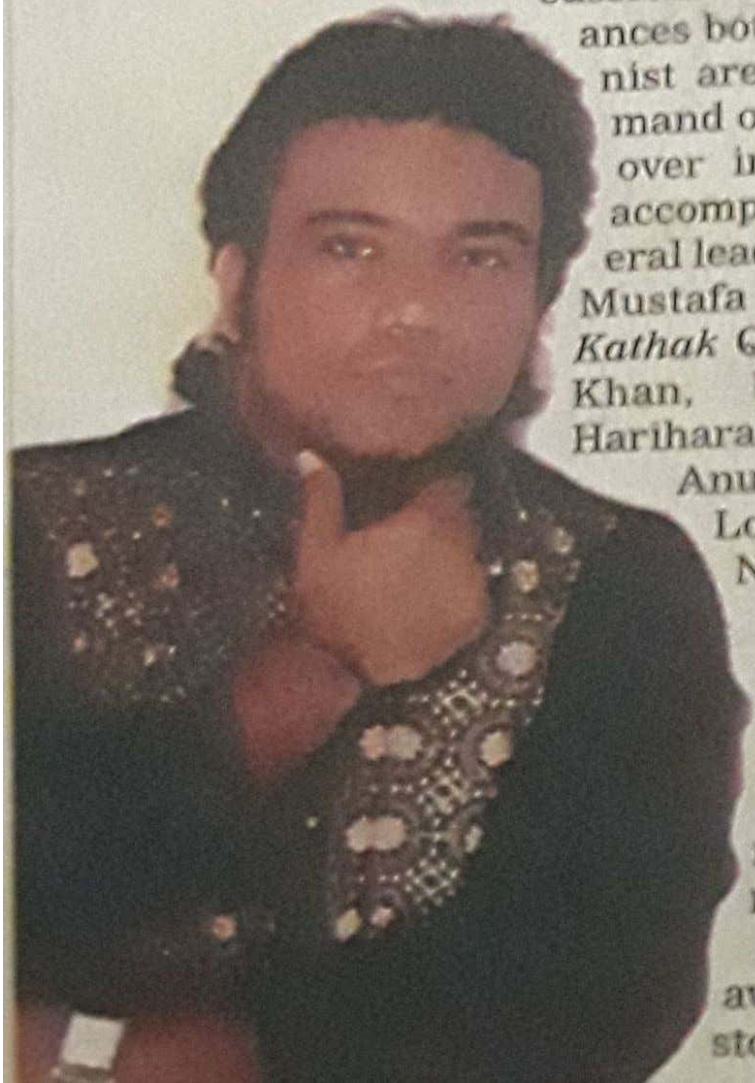
Indian Beat Bazaar enters international compilation

From Pt. Ravi Shankar to Thievery Corporation, Indian Zen released by Wagram Music, France recreates the magic of India and its enchanting rhythms though an elegant and sophisticated selection that brings together both Indian and Western artistes with their most "zen" tracks. Shahdaab Bhartiya, who belongs to a great family of connoisseurs and patrons of Indian classical music, makes it to the prestigious international compilation, Indian Zen with his song track Tere daras from his album Indian Beat Bazaar recently released on Worldwide Records. The song is Shahdaab's tribute to Laxmikant-Pyarelal.

Shahdaab is the son of Ustad Roshan Jamal Bhartiya, a well-known sitarist and the grandson of renowned maestro par excellence Ustad Jamaluddin Bhartiya, founder and director-general of the Tritantri Vidyapeeth Academy in Holland. "I am extremely thrilled by this development and moreover because the song Tere daras is very close to my heart as it's my tribute to the great composer duo Laxmikant-Pyarelal," says Shahdaab, who has composed and arranged the 12 tracks.



Shahdaab is acknowledged as one of the most talented multi-percussionists and composer, and his performances both in solo as well as an accompanist are marked for his excellent command over the instrument and mastery over intricate laya patterns. He has accompanied and has worked with several leading artistes like - Ustad Ghulam Mustafa Khan, Pandit Brij Narayan, Kathak Queen Sitara Devi, Ustad Sultan Khan, Ustad Rais Khan, Blaaze, Hariharan, Ustad Vilayat Khan, Pandit Anup Jalota, Lucky Ali, Sunita Rao, Louis Banks, the late Ustad Nusrat Fateh Ali Khan and Ghulam Ali and music directors like Lenistern, Daniel Macbeth, Daniel helfric, Dedlef, George Brooks, Miss Dynamite, Feroz Makhum , Cheb Mami and many other international names.

Priced at Rs 295, the album is available at all leading music stores in India.
